IMPORTANT SOUTH ARABIAN ANTIQUITIES.

The Property of Mr. Kaiky Muncherjee, of Aden.

The material is alabaster, except where stated otherwise.

LOT

- 64 A SLAB, WITH IBEX RECUMBENT, $4\frac{1}{4}$ in. by $4\frac{1}{4}$ in.; the background here, as in the case of the other slabs with false-reliefs, is cut away, but the highest plane of the figure is flush with the panel-frame; here the panel-border follows the broken edges of the slab; fragments of an inscription remain, A N S indicating that an inscribed stone was used for the work of art [Pl. I]
- 65 A SLAB, WITH HORSE AND RIDER, 7 in. by 5 in.; the rider is full-face with one foot below (and behind) the horse, wearing short tunic, of which the lower edge, concave, is above the body of the horse; the right hand grasps a sword; the horse-bridle has been misdrawn as a collar; some letters on each side of the head, partly worn away; perhaps (engraved) and written by Dabb [Pl. I]
- 66 A SLAB, WITH HUMAN FIGURE, $3\frac{3}{4}$ in. by $3\frac{3}{4}$ in.; full-face as lot 65; the hand does not grasp the sword; the feet are turned to the left in profile; the tunic hardly reaches the knees; inscription on right and left sides meaning That is Sa'dan Tausa; the first of these names is found in classical Arabic, the second is found in S. Arabian inscriptions as a local and as a tribal name [Pl. I]
- 67 A Slab, with ibex recumbent, 4 in. by $3\frac{1}{2}$ in.; the panel margin does not follow the stone, but is deformed to contain the muzzle and feet of the animal
- 68 A LIMESTONE SLAB, WITH BIRD, seen from above, flying, 6 in. by $4\frac{1}{2}$ in.; plumage indicated by chevrons and cross-hatching, the rim of the panel bulges to contain the wings; inscription in letters partly blackened Pheasant of Nejd; the word for pheasant is Persian, and is here in an older form than that which it assumes in classical Arabic [Pl. I]

- 69 A Bowl, with hollow base, 7 in. diam.; inscription Bowl of Ammkahil; the word for bowl, also found with a slight difference in spelling on no. 74, is probably foreign; Greek kyathos? Armenian gawath? names compounded with the element Amm (a South Arabian diety) are common, though this particular compound does not seem to have been found elsewhere

 This and the following six lots are all of Ptolemaic or Graeco-Roman types.

- 71 A Vase, with handle and cover, 2½ in. high, 3 in. diam.
- 72 A Vessel, with two mask handles, ears meant for metal rings, 4 in. high, 4 in. diam.
- 73 An ovoid Vase, with blind handles and broad top, 3¼ in. high, 2¼ in. diam. at top
- 74 A Patera, 3½ in. diam.; inscribed by perforation Bowl of Dabb; the name, which probably means lizard, is also found in the classical dialect
- 75 A Patera, 4½ in. diam.
- 76 A Phial, with lid and blind handles, 2 in. high, 1¾ in. diam.

- 77 A STATUETTE ON PLINTH, height of figure 2 ft. 9 in., of plinth 5 in. by 11 in.; inlaid eyes missing; hair does not reach shoulders; cap or coronet; pointed chin; moustache, but no beard; triple armlet; right hand open; left half close; loincloth and belt ornamented and fringed; inscribed Ma'adil Salhan, son of Yasduqil, king of Ausan

 Edited by D. S. Margoliouth in "Proceedings of the British Academy," 1924-1925. Very little is known of the kingdom of Ausan, whose destruction by a Mukarib of Saba is mentioned in an inscription published by Rhodokanakis, Sitzungsberichte of the Vienna Academy, 1927. The time of this Mukarib is put before 650 B.C. by Hommel (Handbuch der altarabischen Altertumskunde, I. 80-86), and if the inscription and Hommel's chronology can be trusted, this statuette and those of the other princes of this dynasty must belong to very high antiquity.

The general style of the art is against this, as the statuettes appear to show traces of Hellenistic (Syrian) portrait style, and of Graeco-Roman dress. The treatment of the belting is thought to suggest late Greek influence. According to this the age of the statuettes would be of the centuries about the Christian era. Perhaps then the destruction of the kingdom of Ausan was not as final as the author of the inscription asserts [Pl. II]

- 78 A STATUETTE ON PLINTH, height of figure 2 ft. 3 in., plinth 11 in. by 2½ in.; inlaid eyes; hair lies outward on shoulders; no cap; moustache; faint stipple beard; single armlet; belt plain; loincloth broken; inscribed Yasduqil Far'm, king of Ausan, son of Ma'adil

 Edited as above [Pl. III].

- 79 A STATUETTE WITH PLINTH, height of figure 2 ft. 6 in., plinth 9 in. by 2½ in.; inlaid eyes; thick hair on shoulders; prominent ears; cap (or else heavy hair) on top of head; moustache, longer beard lined; costume like Graeco-Roman of folded tunic with himation; features slightly resemble archaic Cypriote; inscribed Yasduqil Far'm Sharah'at, king of Ausan

 Edited as above [Pl. II].

- 80 A STATUETTE, head and both arms broken off above elbow; two hands, not matching, included in lot; height of figure 3 ft., plinth 9 in. by 3 in.; solid eyes, drilled; hair parted in middle and cut short; ears large and flat; moustache enhanced; distinctly stippled beard; folding dress (tunic) reaching below knees; features slightly resemble florid Graeco-Roman type in Cyprus; inscribed Zaidm Sailan, son of Ma'adil

 Edited as above [Pl. III].

- 81 A LIMESTONE SLAB, with historical inscription in Sabaeen, thirteen lines of which are fragmentary; the date is somewhat before 115 B.C., and the events to which reference is made are recorded in other inscriptions, see Hommel, "Handbuch der
